in everything we do.

“When the General Assembly directed the University of Kentucky to become a Top 20 university, we knew then – as we know now – that the key element of building that kind of institution was the recruitment and retention of talent. To move forward, UK and Kentucky needed even more faculty talent in our classrooms and our research laboratories. Bucks for Brains has been, and continues to be, an essential component of our efforts to recruit to Kentucky the finest minds in the world. I often tell people that the difference between UK in the past and UK today is that in the past, this institution was a place where teachers and researchers would come to develop their reputations, then leave for stronger institutions. Today, we are being viewed more and more as a destination rather than a transition. A UK Bucks for Brains chair or professorship is seen across the United States as a designation of substantial accomplishment and continued promise. And that is what teaching and research positions at Top 20 universities should be.

But it is not enough to have strong talent on campus. We also must put that talent to work, finding cures to the diseases that plague too many Kentuckians, building Kentucky businesses and creating Kentucky jobs, and strengthening our communities and our schools. And that is what we are doing. This report chronicles the work of our Bucks for Brains faculty and the ways that work makes a difference for our state. That is the defining role of a flagship university – improving conditions.

The recent struggles affecting our nation’s economy have inevitably taken a toll on our endowment. This has made it more difficult for us to provide sufficient financial support to our chairs and professorships. But when the economy rebounds – and it will rebound – we will again see the kind of endowment growth necessary to make more rapid progress.

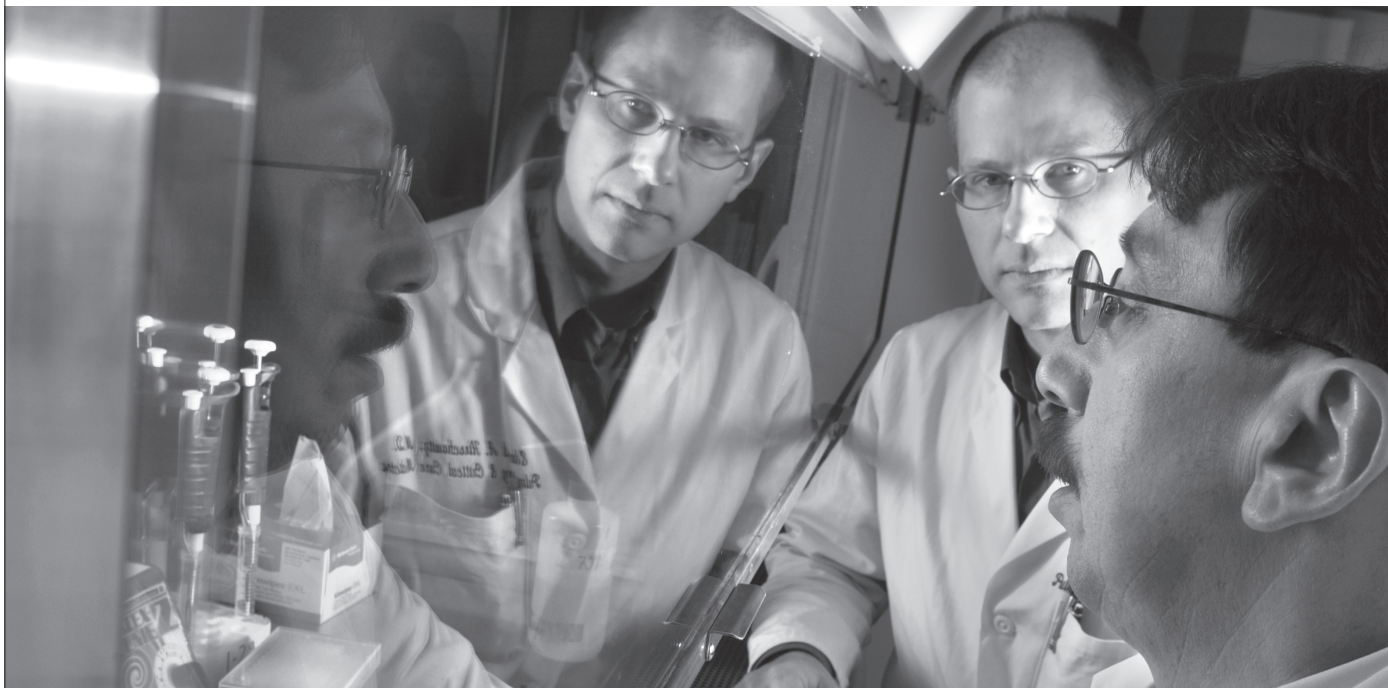

The people of Kentucky and their representatives deserve enormous credit for this visionary approach to building long-term social and economic success.”

FOCUS ON FACULTY

Edward Hirschowitz, Merck and Co. Pulmonary Medicine Professor

Each year in the United States more than 200,000 people are diagnosed with lung cancer, and 85 percent of them will die within the first five years of diagnosis. Eighty-five to 90 percent of those diagnosed are found to have non-small cell lung cancer (NSCLC), characterized by tumors that spread slowly to other parts of the body. Detecting lung cancer early was the goal that drove five years of research by UK Markey Cancer Center researchers Edward Hirschowitz and Li Zhong to create a blood test to predict NSCLC. The test identifies panels of antibodies generated by the immune system in response to very early stage NSCLC. Studies have shown that the presence and amounts of these antibodies in the blood predicted NSCLC with 85 percent accuracy, suggesting that the disease may be present three to five years before reaching the necessary size needed for diagnosis by traditional imaging, like CT scans. Studies currently are under way to confirm the reliability of the test on a larger group of patient samples. If successful, 20/20 GeneSystems Inc. plans to introduce the test within the next year. It would become the first blood test to predict cancer since the prostate specific antigen test was introduced in the 1970s.

Janice Almasi, Carol Lee Robertson Endowed Professor in Literacy

A class of 4th graders in Kent Island, Maryland, in 1986 changed Janice Almasi's life. She had been reading about the benefits of peer book discussions, so she tried that approach in her classroom. "As I witnessed the outcome—nine year olds debating the interpretation of a line in a book and actually listening intently to each other's understanding of the text—a chill shot down my spine," recalls Almasi, a professor in the UK College of Education since 2004. She created a model where students interact as if they're members of Oprah's Book Club, rather than answering questions directed to them from the teacher. In her most recent study, kindergartners, first graders, second graders, and third graders were divided into experimental and comparison groups. The experimental group practiced peer discussion; the comparison group read and discussed texts in the more traditional way—responding to teacher-directed questions. She saw marked differences in the two groups' motivation to read: "The children in the peer discussion group viewed reading as significantly more important and valuable." Almasi is a member of the board of directors for both the National Reading Conference and the International Reading Association.

Buckhorn Professor of Social Work

Three million children have been reported as victims of child maltreatment, with the total number of reports nationwide increasing 41 percent since 1988.

Kentucky has the 7th highest rate of maltreatment-related fatalities in the United States. In 2007, UK established the Center for the Study of Violence Against Children (CSVAC). Center Director Ginny Sprang, an associate professor in social work and psychiatry, says, "The Center is a model for effective university-community engagement and a catalyst for establishing UK as a leader in the areas of research and practice relating to violence against children." The Center recently received $1.6 million from the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration to develop, disseminate and test innovative treatments to help young children who have been victims of violence. Sprang is co-director of the Center's Comprehensive Assessment and Training Services (CATS) Clinic. Funded by the Kentucky Cabinet for Health & Families, the Clinic serves as the living laboratory for CSVAC's research, education and training activities. Since 2003, she has led the Behavioral Health Disaster Response Project, a statewide collaboration among UK, the University of Louisville and the state's Department of Public Health. "We are committed to finding workable solutions to real-world problems," Sprang says.

Alan Daugherty, Gill Foundation Chair in Preventive Cardiology

The bad news: It's the 10th biggest killer in the country, it has no effective treatment except for risky surgery, and it affects a rapidly growing demographic. The good news: Alan Daugherty's groundbreaking research may lead to prevention—or even a cure. Daugherty, a professor of medicine and physiology, and director of the Cardiovascular Research Center, studies aortic abdominal aneurysm (AAA), a disease that predominantly affects males over 55. Few people have heard of the disease, and even fewer study it—making Daugherty's work all the more important. For reasons that are still unknown, AAA begins with a bulge in the aorta; the bulge eventually ruptures, causing massive internal bleeding. "At the moment, it's a disease that you usually don't know you have until the thing bursts and you bleed out into your belly," says Daugherty. "We're trying to determine the type of cell in the aorta that is responsible for starting this disease, as well as those responsible for its progression." Daugherty's lab has narrowed down the possible cell types to macrophages, endothelial cells and smooth muscle cells, thanks to a mouse model of the disease he and Lisa Cassis (Nutritional Sciences) accidentally discovered while studying hardening of the arteries.

Leslie Crofford, Gloria W. Singletary Professor in Women's Health

"Why do some diseases affect women more than men? Why do women respond to some drugs and therapies differently than men? What environmental factors and behaviors most influence women's health? We don't know. But we want to find out," says Leslie Crofford, Director of the Center for the Advancement of Women's Health. The Center is leading the Kentucky Women's Health Registry, which is collecting information to track health trends and recruit women to participate in medical trials. More than 5,200 Kentucky women have enrolled in the registry, and Crofford hopes to collect data from 25,000 women over the next 10 years. The Center is reaching out to women through research, student and resident training, and health information workshops, as well as primary care with an emphasis on prevention. Crofford, Chief of Internal Medicine's Division of Rheumatology, is continuing her studies on rheumatic diseases, including arthritis and fibromyalgia—chronic, widespread muscle pain, accompanied by fatigue. Her study of Pfizer's Lyrica™ showed the drug could significantly reduce the pain of fibromyalgia and improve sleep. "The inflammatory and stress-related diseases I study are much more common in women, so it's a natural fit."

Sam Turco, Antonio S. Turco Professor in Biochemistry

Soldiers returning from Iraq have nicknamed the unwelcome souvenir the "Baghdad boil." The scientific name of the bumps that can grow to the size of a silver dollar is leishmaniasis. Sam Turco, a Professor of Biochemistry, has spent 20 years studying the unique characteristics of this rugged and potentially deadly parasite that thrives in the gut of a sand fly. When a host sand fly bites a human, macrophages rush to the site of the bite to fight off the invader, but leishmania calmly goes about its business of replicating. Leishmaniasis that remains on the skin causes open, slow-healing and sometimes disfiguring skin sores. If the bug works itself inward, it can spread to organs and can cause death if left untreated. About 2 million new cases of leishmaniasis occur each year, primarily in India, Sudan and Afghanistan. Turco, with colleagues at UK and Washington University in St. Louis, has recently made some important inroads to understanding how this parasite functions. When the researchers genetically engineered leishmania to prevent it from making sugar-coated lipids and proteins, the parasite didn't survive in sand flies or in macrophages.

FOCUS ON STUDENTS

Top research universities that recruit world-class researchers attract the best students. UK is using the Endowment Match Program to invest in students. In Fiscal Year 2008, the Endowment Match Program provided graduate fellowships to 409 recipients.

FOCUS ON KENTUCKY

In Fiscal Year 2008, external research grants and contracts at the University totaled $247.2 million (www.research.uky.edu/publications/research2008.pdf). This is up from $122 million in 1997 (a 103 percent increase). A significant portion of that total is a direct result of Bucks for Brains.

During Fiscal Year 2008, these external research grants and contracts resulted in a $365.8 million contribution to the Kentucky economy, including $192.5 million in personal income. Externally supported research accounted for 9,292 jobs at UK and throughout Kentucky. Each dollar of out-of-state external funding for research generates approximately $1.90 of total related expenditures.

ENDOWMENT ACTIVITY

Private donations and state matching funds supported the addition of four endowed chairs, 22 endowed professorships, 15 fellowships, and 13 mission support projects and programs in Fiscal Year 2008 (Table 1).

ENDOWMENT MATCH PROGRAM AT A GLANCE

The University of Kentucky, having fully matched all available funds from the first three rounds of the Endowment Match Program, has received $202,190,929 in state funds. Since 1998, the University of Kentucky has used Bucks for Brains to:

- create 83 endowed chairs (awarded 65) and 210 endowed professorships (awarded 141); and
- create 240 fellowships, lecture, enrichments, and endowments for research support and the William T. Young Library (Table 1).

There are 300 active patents on campus, primarily in pharmaceuticals, plant biotechnology, and biomedical engineering. UK collected $1,204,651 in royalties from intellectual property in Fiscal Year 2008. The University ranks 7th in new start-up companies among its benchmarks.

UK has received national recognition from the Milken Institute, which ranks the success of universities in the process of economic development and commercialization. UK ranks 23rd among public universities in the U.S. – and 35th overall – in technology transfer and commercialization efforts. UK has a strong patent portfolio in drug development and drug design, plant biotechnology, equine health and materials for medical implants, drug delivery systems, and medical devices.

DEMOGRAPHIC INFORMATION

As of June 30, 2008, the University of Kentucky has appointed a total of 166 faculty to endowed chairs and professorships under the auspices of the Endowment Match Program. Of those appointments, 134 (81 percent) are male, and 32 (19 percent) are female. Of the 801 professional staff associated with the Bucks for Brains program, 385 (48.1 percent) are male, and 416 (51.9 percent) are female. (Table 2)

During Fiscal Year 2008, there were 130 endowments supporting graduate fellowships. Since a single endowment may support multiple student awards, 409 graduate students received support funded from endowment proceeds (Table 4). One hundred ninety-six (47.9 percent) of the fellowship recipients were minority students.

AREAS OF CONCENTRATION

The Council on Postsecondary Education's Endowment Match Program 2002-04 Guidelines stipulate that at least 70 percent of program funds at the research institutions must be used to support Research Challenge programs or academic disciplines contained within Kentucky's five new economy clusters: (1) human health and development; (2) biosciences; (3) materials science and advanced manufacturing; (4) information technologies and communications; and (5) environmental and energy technologies. The University of Kentucky directed 82.8 percent of the 2002-04 funds to support positions, programs, or projects within the new economy clusters (Table 5).

TABLE 5: 2002-04 MATCH PROGRAM FUNDS DEDICATED TO COUNCIL PRIORITY AREAS

TOTAL	$66,667,000	$66,667,000	$133,334,000	100.0%

Pursuant to the 2002-04 Endowment Match Guidelines, the University has also directed 72.2 percent of program funds to support chairs, professorships or research scholars, and infrastructure or fellowships directly linked to the research activities of endowed chairs and professors.

FINANCIAL SUMMARY

The University received $25,856,304 of state matching funds in Fiscal Year 2008 (Table 6). With regard to the gifts and pledges received, about 39.4 percent ($10,173,398) was in cash and 60.6 percent in pledges. The market value, as of June 30, 2008, of all endowments created since the inception of the Research Challenge Trust Fund Endowment Match Program is $412,306,448 (Table 7).
